Washington, DC

Four Generations at Holy Trinity: The Belt Family by Peter J. Albert

A 1923 listing of Black parishioners at Holy Trinity, compiled on the eve of their exodus from the parish, tallied over 350 adults, many belonging to families here for years. This article is part of our ongoing effort to retrieve the memory of these parishioners.

The Belt family, who lived at 1414 36th Street, a block from the Church, were part of the parish for over 100 years. The names of some family members appear in civil records, but Holy Trinity's sacramental records are our main source of information about the Belts.

The first members of the family in our records are John and Henrietta (Henny) Belt. The earliest U.S. census to give their ages, in 1850, says John was born around 1790, Henny about 1791. He lived into the 1850s and was a witness in 1851 at the wedding of his daughter Eliza Ann; she lived into the 1870s.

In 1816, when they first appear as parents in our baptismal records, John was enslaved to Tench Ringgold, U.S. Marshal for D.C. from 1818 to 1831; the 1820 U.S. Census shows 18 enslaved people in his household. Because Henny's children were listed as free, she was probably free herself, since the children's status followed their mother's. In 1832, John was still enslaved, but to a different man, Dr. Peregrine Warfield of Georgetown; the U.S. Census shows three enslaved people in his household. The 1832 baptismal record notes Henny as free, as does the 1830 U.S. census. The 1850 U.S. census notes both John and Henny Belt as free.

Over the course of two decades, between 1816 and 1836, 11 Belt children were baptized at Holy Trinity – Thomas, Mary, Ellen, Henrietta, Eliza Ann, Agatha, Elizabeth, Rosan, Ignatius, Teresa, and Martha.

Of their son Thomas Belt, we know only that he stayed in Georgetown; the 1850 and 1860 U.S. Censuses record him as free and as a laborer.

Their daughter Mary Belt was noted as free in our baptismal records; three of her children were baptized here – William Henry in 1835, Mary in 1836, and Mary Magdalen in 1838. Henny Belt was sponsor for all three.

Their daughter Ellen Belt, also noted as free, married Richard Ford at Holy Trinity in 1835, with Henny Belt as witness.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

Fr. Kevin Gillespie, SJ

Perhaps you have heard of how Jesus in Mark's Gospel in speaking with his disciples, after a long series of labors, said to them, "Come away and rest for a while." On July 1 "I began to come away and rest for a while." Last fall when my provincial, Father Joseph O'Keefe, S.J, missioned me to serve several more years here at Holy Trinity, he suggested that I take a two-month sabbatical. It is interesting that the word "sabbatical" is derived from the biblical notion of Sabbath and denoted as "a day of rest dedicated to God." And so you might say that my sabbatical is several Sabbaths put together.

One of my hopes for this period of sabbatical rest is to use the Ignatian Examen to review my years of ministry here at Holy Trinity. Many grace-filled consolations have come to mind and they have helped me gain perspective on my ministry. When I arrived in September 2015, I published my philosophy of leadership where I highlighted the importance of collaboration, stating, "As Pastor of Holy Trinity Parish I will seek to learn by listening to members of the parish community through encounters that promote participatory dialogues and collaborative actions." I have shared this statement with members of the Pastoral Parish Council, members of the parish staff and several years ago published it in the Parish Bulletin. Allow me to share some of the many consolations of "collaborative actions" I have experienced over the past seven years:

2015 - Initial meetings with so many wonderful colleagues and parishioners; Formal installation Mass with Cardinal Wuerl; Beginning of rectory garden and collaboration with the Garden Committee.

2016 - Parish Assessment Review process begins; Church windows removed for restoration; Parish convent sold.

2017 - Parish Mission Statement approved; Parish sponsors the Cheikho family from Syria (the first of many refugees supported by the parish); Pilgrimage with parishioners to the Holy Land.

2018 - Bicentennial celebration of Holy Trinity School; Dozens of parishioners participate in reflection groups in response to the Cardinal McCarrick Report.

2019 - Anniversary celebration marking the 225th Anniversary of the parish Chapel; Church restoration; Timeline of Holy Trinity Church history is displayed in McKenna Hall; Dedication of Holy Trinity Columbarium at Holy Rood Cemetery.

2020 - Parish begins researching issues of racism in its history; COVID shutdown of live Masses and parish programs; Beginning of livestream Masses and daily audio homilies.

2021 - Start of the Ignatian Year; HTS and HTP time capsules are buried, to be opened in 2043 and 2044 respectively; Installation of the Timothy Schmalz statue, "When I was hungry" in the Chapel garden.

2022 - Synodal meetings; Parish pilgrimage to the Ignatian sites in Spain and Rome; Parish pilgrimage marking our African American history.

Obviously there are many more events I could mention, but those listed above represent some of the collaborative parish experiences that provide perspective of my ministry here at Holy Trinity. In closing I should note that I will be here for the culmination of The Ignatian Year on the Feast of St. Ignatius, July 31. Throughout the sabbatical I will spend time in gratitude for my seven years thus far collaborating with so many of you at Holy Trinity and in hope for the years of ministry to come. God bless.

Ford was enslaved to Enoch Moreland in 1835 and then, two years later, to a Mr. Moulding. (The 1830 U.S. Census shows one enslaved person in Moreland's household; Moulding does not appear in the census.) Six Ford children were baptized at Holy Trinity – William Henry in 1837, Richard in 1838, Henrietta in 1844, Agnes in 1849, Louis in 1851, and William in 1853. Henny Belt sponsored all but the last. Ellen Belt Ford, but not her husband, appears in the 1860 U.S. Census along with her son Richard, working as a laborer, and a daughter, Martha.

Their daughter Henrietta Belt, noted as free, had at least two children baptized at Holy Trinity before she married – Anna Maria in 1837 and Martha in 1845. (Henny sponsored Anna Maria.) In 1850 she married Benjamin Ross, who was free, at Holy Trinity, and their family appears in the 1860 U.S. Census Benjamin and Henrietta Ross, their children (Louisa, E. J., and Martha), Henrietta's mother Henny, and Martha Belt, born to Henrietta before she married Ross.

Their daughter Eliza Ann Belt married Edward Dyer at Holy Trinity in 1851; Eliza's father John Belt appeared as a witness at the ceremony. They do not appear subsequently in our records.

Their daughters Agatha and Elizabeth Belt do not appear in Holy Trinity's records after their baptisms; Rosan Belt is listed there as "dead." Teresa Belt died at the age of six months and Martha Belt at 18 months; both are buried at Holy Rood Cemetery.

Their son Ignatius Belt, who worked as a laborer, married Martha Ridgely at Holy Trinity in 1856; five of their six children appear in our baptismal records – Charles Alexander in 1862, Margaret Genevieve in 1867, Joseph Lorenzo in 1868, Ignatius Armstead in 1870, William Henry in 1871. Only Armstead and William survived into adulthood. Ignatius died in 1907, Martha in 1920, and their son Armstead in 1911; all are buried at Holy Rood Cemetery. Armstead Belt's sons Henry Sylvester (born 1895) and James Orville Leroy (born 1898) were both baptized at Holy Trinity. Sylvester Belt served as a private in the Army in World War I and, when he died, in 1967, he was buried at Baltimore National Cemetery in Catonsville.

Sacramental records, then, enable us to piece together the outline of the Belt family's history – their matriarch Henny Belt who was godmother to some nine grandchildren, their struggle with the specter of enslavement as they walked from slavery into freedom, their grounding at Holy Trinity for baptisms, marriages, and burials, and above all their ongoing commitment to family. Let us remember them.✠ (The full text of this article can be found at curavirtualis.org)
