St. Jean Baptiste-Haiti/Holy Trinity Scholarship Fund

by Mike Conway, Coordinator of the St. Jean Baptiste Scholarship Fund

Education in Haiti is challenged by the economy, civil and political unrest, natural disasters and extreme poverty. However, due to the generosity of those contributing to SJB/HT Scholarship Fund, the following students are among the 32 Haitians for whom the Fund has offered an opportunity to pursue their post-secondary education. The Fund covers their tuition fees and, when the need is determined, their laptops and phones.

Saintenise Bien Aime is studying pharmaceutical science at Notre Dame University in Port-au-Prince (PAP) and is considering the continuation of her schooling after she graduates this December.

Christonna Silencieux attended secretarial school and now works at the Catholic girls' school, located close to the rectory at our sister parish in Anse d'Hainault, Haiti.

Woodner Charlestra majors in computer systems at Canado Technique in PAP. This school was founded in 1973 by the Brothers of the Sacred Heart from Canada.

Lisa Louise Charles married a Protestant pastor and is employed as a teacher in Chambellan, a small town not far from our sister parish.

Ruchama Siprin studies law at Quisqueya University in PAP.

Cenise Georges and Marie Flore Adrien graduated from nursing school in Jérémie and have found jobs at the local hospital. In their "thank you" note they wrote: "You helped put us on a path which gave our lives new meaning and we think we will never be able to thank you enough for this. We hope you continue to help others like you helped us."

Since the beginning of the SJB/HT Scholarship Fund in 2016, six students have graduated from their post-secondary programs and 22 are currently enrolled. Four did not continue with their original educational plans.

At its inception the scholarship fund was able to pay the tuition for three students from our sister parish's secondary school, St. Raymond's. Last year we committed to supporting nine young men and women. Our scholarship students have enrolled in universities, professional schools, like nursing and agronomy, a technical/vocational school and a government supported school for teachers. Presently, the Fund is able to support the tuition fees for any student accepted to one of the six post-secondary schools with which we have a trusting relationship.

Over 70 individuals have donated to the fund, and the HT/SJB Haiti Committee hopes to enlarge our team of sponsors for the Class of '22. Although donations of any size are gratefully accepted, each "sponsor" commits to contributing $250/year for four years.

To become a scholarship sponsor or learn more about the various projects of the HT/SJB Committee, please email StJeanBaptisteHaiti@gmail.com.

LIVING OUR MISSION
Accompany One Another in Christ: Reflections from My Service Trip
by Anna Karnell, High School Senior

On Sunday, June 26, seven high school students and I arrived at Holy Trinity for a send-off mass before we hopped in a car on our way to Baltimore. I never anticipated how much the support from this group and our adult leaders would play into my ability to serve and connect to those in need during our week of service.

On Monday, we jumped into action at Sacred Heart Church. Using our hands to weed—such a simple action—we added a little bit of beauty to the exterior grounds that reflected the interior beauty of this Church. Later that evening, we were given a task: create a reasonable budget - one that could feed four people. We created a meal on a budget of $20-$30. Then our leaders told us we had a measly $8.75 to spend on dinner! This gave us a taste of what it was like to feed a family living in poverty.

Tuesday at the Franciscan House, we helped hand essential items, such as bread, pots, pans, and sanitary items, to people in need. In the evening, everyone joined the Grief Ministry, and we organized a bunch of pantry items that were used as donations to families who had lost a loved one to violence. This was my favorite service, partly because of the cause and also because I really felt needed. This organization didn’t have enough people to get the work done. In the evening, through a scavenger hunt, we built connections with each other.

Wednesday, we went to St. Paul’s Place and worked in the retail section. I helped people pick out a few outfits in a limited time. I was surprised at how different each client was and how different their needs and attitudes were. I could empathize with each person. Some were embarrassed. Some were carefree. I appreciated that while they might have had poverty in common, poverty didn’t define them. Each person had her own personality and needs, his own story of life. Later, we all went to a farm to pick sugar snap peas and raspberries that would be donated to soup kitchens and other nonprofits.

Thursday, which was my final day, we went to another soup kitchen to sort out the pantry. The week quickly passed. Each evening, we had a reflection where we talked about what we did that day and took a moment of silence. I think we all were trying to process what we were experience...something I’m still doing.

That night, I had to leave the group. I wish I could have stayed longer. I connected with the people around me and with each act of service. It’s something I’d like to participate in again, and I thank my peers and the adults for creating a pleasant environment where I felt comfortable to serve.

Holy Trinity teens painted and worked in the garden at Sacred Heart Church in Baltimore.
